

3rd Practitioner Applied Health Psychology Conference - #ahpc2019

28th March 2019 – BPS London Office

Conference Programme & Theme: Challenges of Applying Health Psychology into Health Services and Care

Welcome to the 3rd Practitioner Applied Health Psychology Conference! In 2014 the UK Practitioner Applied Health Psychology group on LinkedIn was set up and from this platform and the network of colleagues we had been collaborating with over the years, we held two successful Applied Health Psychology Networking and Careers Events in 2014/2015. These events brought together our developing Practitioner Health Psychology field, where Health Psychologists and Trainees discussed common issues about applied practice. The 1st Practitioner Conference was held in 2017 and showcased the varied roles of Health Psychologists working in applied practice their competencies, skills and challenges. This Conference provides a unique opportunity to present non-research related applied practice; such as Health Psychology service audits, developments and evaluations, personal reflections on applied practice, case studies in practice and the application of the Health Psychology evidence base into direct therapeutic services for the public within a variety of contexts. What could you present on?!

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: JULIAN BATH: CPsychol, FHEA

We are delighted to welcome Julian Bath, Programme Manager for the Professional Doctorate in Health Psychology at the University of the West of England (UWE), Bristol and a Senior Lecturer in Health Psychology within the Department of Psychology. He is a Health and Care Professions Council (HCPC) Registered Health Psychologist, and was previously a Consultant Health Psychologist at Gloucestershire Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, with significant experience of working therapeutically and managing services in Renal Care, Cardiac Rehabilitation, Diabetes and Rheumatology. He has a wide range of experience in academia and the NHS, including consultancy services, supervision of trainee Health Psychologists, publishing books and research papers as well as the training of health professionals. Julian is a BPS supervisor for Stage 2 Health Psychology training and was previously the Honorary Secretary of the BPS, Division of Health Psychology.

We warmly welcome you to the 3rd Practitioner Applied Health Psychology Conference 2019. We look forward to another superb Conference demonstrating the continuing forward movement of UK Practitioner Applied Health Psychology. We are inspired to see another year of quality submissions and delighted to host such a creative and innovative Programme for you to participate in.

Warm wishes, Sasha & Claire (SCCH)
